Advanced Programme on Asset-Liability Management

Background

In view of the deregulation of the financial markets and increasing participation in various segments of financial markets, banks and financial institutions in financial services industry are exposed to market risk. In fact, financial performance of banks and non-bank financial service enterprises largely depends on how they succeed in managing market risk in their businesses. This calls for management of assets and liabilities more efficiently and effectively. Recognizing the importance of asset-liability management, central banks in most of the countries have issued Guidelines on ALM and requested them to install and implement ALM system. Accordingly, banks and financial institutions have started focusing on ALM to manage market risk in their business in a deregulated but competitive market environment. This system is also expected to meet liquidity and leverage norms under Basel III.

To cope with the emerging challenges in the management of assets and liabilities, and implementation of Basel III Norms, executives in banks and financial institutions need to be equipped with both functional knowledge and skills pertaining to use of ALM system including use of advanced techniques for better ALM. For this purpose, they need to have knowledge of key areas of ALM and appropriate skill to apply the same in day-to-day business. Therefore, executives in banks and financial institutions who are involved in the implementation of ALM system needs to be exposed to the advanced techniques and latest developments in the subject of ALM. It is against this background that the proposed advanced programme is being organized at National Institute of Bank Management (NIBM).

Who can Attend the Programme

- Executives in the middle and senior management grade from banks who are involved in the management of ALM system.
