International Programme on Bank Financial Management

(Focus: Risk Management and Basel II & III Accord)

Duration : Two Week

Dates : January 7 - 19, 2019

Level of Participation : Senior and Middle Management

Coordinator : Dr S V Kuvalekar & Prof Sanjay Basu

In the recent past significant changes have taken place in the financial markets and banking industry in several countries on account of reforms and deregulation of financial markets. As a result, banks and financial institutions are faced with several challenges in managing their businesses. In view of the growing competition and consequent fall in spreads, banks and financial institutions are also facing the challenge of business expansion with risk mitigation. Increasing globalisation of the financial system in these countries has made the banking business much more complex and challenging.

Further, with active participation in various segments of the financial markets, banks and financial institutions are exposed to a variety of risks such as credit risk, interest rate risk, operational risk, and so on. Against this backdrop, banks and financial institutions have to develop and implement an appropriate risk management system which will facilitate effective financial management. With the introduction of Basel III Accord norms by central banks in most of the countries, banks and financial institutions have to raise their capital resources and manage assets in line with the requirements of achieving capital adequacy norms under the Basel III Accord.

Keeping this in view, NIBM has designed a two-week International Programme on Bank Financial Management with focus on risk management and Basel Accords. It is proposed to debate the global financial scenario and the capital requirement under Basel II & III Accords.
