Programme on Digital Marketing in Banking and Financial Services

Background

The digital and the technological world is evolving on a continuous basis affecting the way businesses reach out and interact with their customers. Banks and financial institutions need to adapt to the changing world for customer acquisition, retention and developing long term relationships with their consumers. Banks and financial institutions that adapt to the changing digital worlds will thrive and those that don't will have to fight for their survival. The global digital advertising spending in 2017 was USD 229.25 billion dollars which are estimated to reach USD 334.5 billion in 2020 indicating a continuous increase in the proportion of total digital ad spends in the overall advertising expenditure. A major chunk of this ad spend is being captured by Google and Facebook.

The traditional means of marketing (i.e. advertising through mass-media) is not yielding great results anymore. The time has come for banks to target individual customers through targeted campaigns using digital marketing. This is more cost-effective and ensures proper reach with little spill-over effects. This training programme will equip participants with a framework to develop an integrated digital marketing strategy to deliver marketing objectives for banks and financial services. The participants will be able to compare and contrast their plan with the best practices in the financial services domain as well as other sectors.

Objectives

- ⇒ To enable participants developing a comprehensive digital marketing strategy to deliver marketing outcomes for banks.

- ⇒ To enable participants to design and implement digital marketing plans in alignment with the traditional marketing plans for their banks.
- ⇒ Promote the products and services of their banks through digital media for lead generation, customer engagement and retention.
- ⇒ To understand various digital marketing measurement tools & its usage to draw key insights to optimize campaign performance.
