Programme on Domestic Enquiries and Disciplinary Actions

The connotation of the words 'vigilance' and 'discipline' is anti-corruption efforts. These are not stand-alone activities; rather these have to be seen as a part of the overall risk management strategy of any organisation, particularly for banks, as they are custodians of public money and are always vulnerable to frauds by insiders as well as outsiders. Nonetheless, discipline is a vital management tool which aims for increase efficiency and effectiveness of the organisation by preventing the leakages that adversely affect productivity and profitability. Unfortunately, discipline management remains a challenge at all levels of management of banks and financial institutions as it is apparently perceived as a negative activity.

However, when a number of banks are re-engineering and re-organising their business processes by leveraging all means, including information technology, and rising NPAs, it will be in organisational interest that they should identify the likely risks like fraud, corruption and other malpractices and bring in the required tools in the new processes. For maintaining purity and integrity of the employees, there is a need for understanding the concepts of vigilance, investigation, enquiry proceedings, principles of natural justice and what vitiates domestic proceedings.
